ANN C. STUART'S CARGO AFIRE

Schooner With 700 Barrels of Lime in Danger in Lower Harbor

The small schooner Ann C. Stuart of Ellsworth, Me., with a cargo of 700 barrels of lime is afire in Pepperell's Cove and it is believed by seafaring men that the craft and her cargo are doomed. The schooner put into the harbor several days ago, but it was not until last night that the fire broke out. This morning the little vessel was sealed in the hopes of extinguishing the blaze. An effort was also made to obtain a lighter in order to take off the deck load of the schooner.

The Ann C. Stuart was built at Ellsworth, Me., in 1893. Her gross tonnage is 50; net tonnage 37; length, 59.4; breadth, 22.2; depth, 5.2 and she carries a crew of two men.

train, and picture hat of black velvet. She carried a bridal bouquet of lilacs of the valley.

Following the nuptials an informal reception was held.

The bride is a graduate of Portsmouth High school, class of '07, and a most attractive and accomplished young lady, popular with a large circle in this city.

The groom graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the class of '09 and is held in the highest esteem by all his acquaintances. He holds an excellent position with the firm of Rice and Hutchins, shoe manufacturers.

Successful Attack Made By German Submarine in the North Sea

Warship Carried a Crew of 544 Men and Only 50 Were Saved

(Special to The Herald)

London, Oct. 16.—The British cruiser Hawke has been sunk in the North Sea by the German submarine, in another daring raid from the German coast.

The news of this latest German naval triumph was given out by the Admiralty today.

Only 50 members of the crew escaped. The Hawke and the Theseus, a sister cruiser of the same class, were on patrol duty, when the attack was launched. The German submarine aimed a torpedo at the Theseus, but it missed, and the cruiser escaped.

The Admiralty did not give the exact location of the disaster, nor the time. It was later learned that the disaster occurred Wednesday. The sinking of the Hawke evidently occurred far north as the survivors were landed at Aberdeen, Scotland.

The Hawke was a war craft of 7300 tons, and had an ordinary complement of 544 men. She was 360 feet in length, 60 feet in the beam, and was capable of a speed of 19 knots. The armament of the cruiser consisted of two 9-inch guns, sixteen 6-inch guns, twelve 6-pounders, five 3-pounders, two machine guns, and two 18-inch torpedo tubes. The Hawke was commanded by Captain Williams. It was this warship which collided with the White Star liner Olympic, in the English channel, in September, 1911. The Hawke was built in 1899.

TWO GREAT ARMIES ON EVE OF BATTLE

(Special to The Herald)

Paris, Oct. 16.—The Austro-German army which is moving against the Russian grand army in Poland, consists of four mighty columns, nearly one million men, according to a Petrograd dispatch to the Matin today.

The following is the telegram: "Four columns, including one of Austrian troops, are marching against the Russians. The first is moving by the way of Lotz against Warsaw; the second towards Sandomier; the third against Ivangorod, and the fourth made up of Austrian troops, against the Vistula. There are twenty German army corps and eight Austrian army corps, in the advancing host. Against these forces more than a million Russians are under arms. The battle is expected to last several weeks, but furious fighting is already under way. The Germans have suffered one reverse, for on Tuesday the Russians encountered three or four German army corps, near Warsaw, and put them to flight.

FIGHTING ALL ALONG BATTLE LINE

(Special to The Herald)

Paris, Oct. 16.—Fighting is in progress on the great battle line extending from Ypres in northwestern Belgium, to the sea, according to an official French statement issued here at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The official statement says: "The progress indicated in yesterday's communication, is confined to our left wing. The action of the allies' forces now extends from the region of Ypres to the sea. In Russia, on the left bank of the Vistula, during the day of Oct. 13, Russian troops repulsed the Germans' attack directed against Warsaw and Ivangorod. The battle is now going on to the south of Pryemysl."

Wentworth of Concord, a stockholder in the Boston and Maine property, and the other by the road itself, counsel for which made answer to Mrs. Wentworth's bill admitting all the facts alleged, and joining with her in the litigation to break the contract, which is alleged to be one-sided and excessive.

DAILY SPORT LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke)

There are 11 college graduates on the Athletics roster at the present time—a greater number by far of this type of athletes than decorates the lineup of any other big league ball club. The college players are:

Second Baseman Eddie Collins (Columbia); Shortstop Jack Barry (Holy Cross); Outfielder Eddie Murphy (Villanova); and Jimmy Walsh (Sagoras University); Pitchers Edward Plank (Gettysburg), Charles Edward Bender (Carleton), Lloyd Davies (Amherst), J. Vernon Wyckoff (Dartmouth), Jack Combs (Colby), Catcher Dean D. Sturges (Dartmouth); Utility J. A. Thompson (University of North Carolina).

It long has been Connie Mack's theory that a good college player will develop into a brainier, better big league player than the sand-lot variety of ball player. And Connie's scouts, instead of looking the country, watching the minor leaguers in action, devote most of their time to watching the college boys in their games.

Connie saw Jack Barry in action while Barry was shortstop for the Holy Cross team and shortly afterward induced Barry to sign a contract. Barry didn't cost Connie a dollar in purchase money. Neither did Eddie

COACH HINKEY HAS YALE VARSITY SQUAD
WORKING HARD TO PERFECT CHARGES

CAPTAIN TALBOT ♦ ♦ ♦ COACH HINKEY

New Haven, October 16.—The Yale football regulars and scrubs are working each afternoon. Coach Frank Hinkey keeps four teams scrimmaging every day for nearly three hours. All the work is done behind closed gates, orders having been issued to bar all spectators for the present. All efforts have been turned toward gaining greater perfection in charging and passing. Repeatedly Hinkey stops the regulars to coach them on faults. Nothing is being left undone to equip the Yale team with a variety of tactics capable of meeting the style of open play which Notre Dame uses. Probably Yale will suffer but slightly Saturday owing to the absence of men on account of injuries. Knowles appeared in uniform on Tuesday and played left halfback against the scrubs on the second varsity team. His line charge brought gains for his team. Onlookers said his work in this respect was the best he has shown this season.

THEATRICAL TOPICS

The George Kiehn Company has paid Lydia Beretta, a twenty-two year old actress the sum of $22,000 for her work in the five reel film-ization of Henry Batelli's French novel, "The Naked Truth".

A cablegram has just been received by the Chicago Tribune from Paris dated October 2nd to the effect that Max Under, the man with the mobile countenance, and the most noted photograph artist in Europe is alive. It was reported that he had been killed at the battle of the Aisne. However he telephoned the Paris newspapers that he was in the battle, wounded, and now a convalescent. Needless to say he is the Public comedienne.

Dorothy Donnelly, creator of the Madame X, has been engaged by the Fox Office Attraction Company to play the star in Henri Bernstein's play, "The Thief".

The United States battleship Utah has installed a motion picture projecting machine.

Don't fail to see the fourth installment of "The Believer Adventure" at the Portsmouth Theatre Friday and Saturday. It will be the most interesting to date. In this installment the real action begins. Watch for the announcement pertaining to the book.

THE WHIRL OF THE WORLD

Monday night, October 12, marks the beginning of the third and last week of the engagement of "The Whirl of the World" at the Shubert Theatre. The big Winter Garden production has met with a favor almost unprecedented in the history of local theatrics, the theatre being crowded nightly with throngs who have alternately laughed at the antics of the funny comedians, marveled at the scenic surprises, wondered at the dazzling costumes, pleased by the dazzling musical numbers, dancing specialties and songs with which the big review abounds from first to the final curtain. Willie and Eugene Howard, as gifted a pair of singing comedians shown in musical plays for many a year, have made a hit of pronounced proportions, and are particularly amusing in their grand opera travesty in which the excellent singing voices of both are shown to superior advantage. Their patter is as delightful a bit of foolery as has ever been written for a musical show of the kind. Mile Chapline, imported from Paris to create the role of Elia, has firmly established herself as a prime favorite. Moon and Morris, eccentric dancers, offer an original topsy-turvy novelty which has taken Boston by storm. Others who have succeeded in ingratiating themselves into the good graces of the audience are Juliette Lappe, one of America's greatest beauties, Lucille Cavanaugh, a dainty dancing spirit, Bessie Barrett, Robert and Lawrence Ward, Clarence Harvey, John T. Murray and Emily Lee. The chorus of sixty Winter Garden girls display some amazing gown creations on the stage and on the runway out over the auditorium. The thrilling and spectacular

STOPS ITCHING

This old time skin healer is used just like any cold cream.

With the first application of bold-sulphur the angry itching attending any eczema eruption ceases and its remarkable healing powers begin. Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common bold-sulphur, made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur and apply it to the irritated, inflamed skin, the same as you would any cold cream.

For many years this soothing, healing sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticide, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subside the irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

PRESIDENT SIGNS THE CLAYTON BILL

Administration's Trust Programme is Completed Without any Dramatic Ceremonies.

Washington, Oct. 15.—President Wilson today signed the Clayton anti-trust bill, thus completing the Administration's trust programme. There were no ceremonies connected with the signing of the bill.

A young couple, Frederick and Lily Wagner, in the first act they are pictured in the luxury of their fifth avenue mansion. The husband is rich and prosperous but business reverses reduce him in the second act to a Harlem flat. His wife, a vain, selfish creature cannot adjust herself to their reduced circumstances, and a woman friend, a Mrs. Garland, shows her a way to secure the pretty clothes and the other things that she covets.

To venture further than this in the story of "To-Day," and to reveal the electrical denouement of play would only serve to mar the visit of the prospective attendant to the play. It is sufficient to say that the following points are most forcefully and effectively brought out in this great play. That the love of luxury and personal adornment form the basis of one of the greatest American problems of American life. The idleness among our women has reached the terrible stage, that the craze of vulgar display and outdoing one's neighbor has developed into a national disease; that the accumulation of great wealth has its disadvantages; and that the civilization of the intellect is more soul satisfying than the mania for acquiring things.

For the interpretation of "To-Day" Manager Harry Von Tilzer has provided a cast of wonderful strength: Edmund Gresham, Madam Mathilde Cuttely, Marie Walworth, Ethel Venable, Teresa Maxwell Conners, and Bernard A. Peltand.

An Important Suggestion.

This paper is in full sympathy with the agitation for "Made in America" goods, their use in this country and the pushing of their sale in foreign lands, and is therefore glad to pass along any suggestion which promises to forward the movement or aid it in any degree.

With respect to foreign trade one suggestion, and one that he considers of large importance, comes from Dr. A. A. Snowden, secretary of the commission sent abroad early this year by the National Association of Manufacturers to study the openings for American goods in other countries. The commission visited Australia, New Zealand, Japan and China and made extensive investigations, and the fact that most impresses Dr. Snowden is that the manufacturers seeking foreign trade should send personal representatives to push their wares. These men must be not only capable, but honest, and must treat their prospective customers honestly and fairly. They must avoid misrepresentation and the overstatement of facts concerning the goods offered, and the latter must be of a quality to fully substantiate every representation. In short, the goods must be honest and their sale must be pressed by honest and persistent men. The label, "Made in America," is not going to sell American goods until foreigners have learned that it is more than an empty phrase.

Thoughtful men will recognize the importance of Dr. Snowden's contention in this regard. The laws of this country and the experience of the people are such as to show that many of the goods made in America are not honest. This is not to say that America is a nation of cheats, but while most American goods are honestly made and honorably sold, there are exceptions to the rule and fraud and trickery in certain lines of production are still too common.

Dr. Snowden, who gains his knowledge at first hand, is convinced that this sort of thing will never go in the foreign markets, and he is undoubtedly right in his conclusion. If American manufacturers are to increase their foreign trade and extend it into new fields they must give their customers the square deal. And incidentally the people of this country would benefit if "Made in America" were to become recognized as a guaranty of genuineness.

Salaries in the postal service are fairly good, compared with those in other lines of work, yet there is an occasional employee who cannot be satisfied with his pay and so kills the goose that lays his golden egg by stealing from the mails. A Texas post-office clerk has just been arrested on the charge of embezzling registered packages containing $25,000 in cash. If he is convicted the venture will prove a mighty poor investment, for Uncle Sam does not deal lightly with offenses of that character.

It is reported that a newspaper editor was recently expelled from Japan after the government had suspended the publication of the paper because of articles published which were offensive to the powers that be. If the banished editor wants to know what real "freedom of the press" means he should locate in the United States and note the liberties accorded to some of the "yellows."

The woods are now full of hunters and nut gatherers, and until rain comes they cannot be too careful in the use of matches. It is seldom that the woods are so dry at this time of the year, and a match carelessly dropped before being completely extinguished is liable to mean damages running into big figures.

If Congress adjourns next week, as it hopes to do, there will be brought to an end a continuous session of 18 months, the longest in the history of the country. Baseball and legislation are two subjects on which the people of the United States are little less than mad.

In this state the other day a hunter mistook his companion for a rabbit and shot him, inflicting a painful wound. But it was not the victim's ears that drew the fire of the sportsman; it was his white shirt which the shooter mistook for a "cotton-tail."

Have you seen the Delevan comet? It is no match for some that have appeared in years past, but astronomers assure us that it can be seen in the evening with the naked eye a little below the last star in the handle of the Big Dipper.

If the cotton growers and their sympathizers will be patient for a time everything will come out all right. Cotton is not a perishable crop, the world has use for it and it will find its way to the people in due time, war or no war.

It is announced that the Alaska coal bill will not be passed at this session of Congress, but this does not mean that it is not a good bill, all things considered. Its main provisions have already been set forth in this column.

Pretty good straw hat weather, calendar and custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

ADVENTURES OF A TRACTION ENGINE.

Paris, Oct. 16.—I met it on the road from Beauvais. If I had not been wide awake I should have thought it was only a nightmare. But it was broad day and I was speeding along at the rate of thirty miles an hour.

What could it be doing here—an on a road in the North of France? If ever there was anything brilliant it was this traction engine. The race was started on every wheel, on the boiler on the four-mile-an-hour pace, on the spout of steam and dirty black smoke the man who looked as though he owned the landscape.

"Halt!" A French soldier stood at the barricade. There was puzzled look on his face. He was, I am sure, a brave man but how were he and his machine to meet the charge of a traction engine? The army regulations make no provision for such an emergency.

I pulled up to watch the encounter. The sentry approached with caution. "Parlez-vous—be hanged. Can't you see I'm English," exclaimed an indignant voice from the pantomachine that dragged behind.

The sentry collapsed, and the ponderous levithin moved on. "Hello!" What on earth are you doing here?" I cried when we got alongside.

The smutty face broadened and beamed.

"Good to hear English again. Why didn't these people learn to speak a language people can understand?"

"Have a cigar?"

It was my last, but I knew it was like the last train so many war correspondents have been catching there would be plenty more.

So we parted like ships passing in the night, and I never thought to see the lechytossus of the road again.

But here it is in Bruen taking possession of the square in front of the beautiful little church of St. Maclo, and here is my friend of the unwashed face. I push my way through the admiring crowd of soldiers and civilians.

"What are you doing here?"

"Waiting for repairs. Why they send these old coal heavers over here I can't say, but here we are, and we've got to make the best of it."

"How do you manage without an interpreter?"

"There's where the blooming fun comes in. What are we to do with people who call their mother a mare and their father a pear. When we want coal I have to take a piece in my hand and argue with them for half an hour. But I always get the coal. But as for water; Good Lord! It's easier to get 'win rooge' which even the kids in this country drink instead of beer."

Thousands of Prisoners of War Now Held by Various Nations.

Photos copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

The European war has already seen thousands of men taken as prisoners. Germany alone is reported to have 200,000 prisoners within her borders. The top picture shows Austrian prisoners of war having an easy time of it at Nish, Servia. The bottom picture shows German prisoners of war under English guard. It has been estimated that nearly 1,000,000 soldiers are now held by the various countries at war as prisoners. The correctness of this figure is not vouchered for because of the lack of positive information.

I thought I was paying him a compliment when I asked if he came from Scotland—for he had the accent.

"No blooming fear, Dublin's my country, though the blooming Germans did think we would not fight for the old country."

"I met you near Beauvais?"

"Yes, we spent the night there."

"Why, the Germans were said to be in the town."

"Devil a wan of them. We've been looking for them four days and nights. They're lost. We've got a sergeant who always knows where they are, but he's not here just now."

What is it the folk say when you ask them the way?"

"Touffroit."

"Yes, that's where the sergeant thinks they always are. When ever he hears that blooming word he takes to the side tracks where we're most likely to meet these blooming hoodlums—or 'Ubians—who spend their time cutting up women and children."

I don't call that war; it's just murder."

"A little child pushed its way through the crowd with a toy rifle in its hand. Tommy stooped down and put the rifle at the carry and kissed the child. I shuddered at the coal-black face, but the mother looked pleased and the child smiled its delight at the kind soldier."

He told me some interesting stories from the first of how the Germans put on British and French uniforms and walked into our lines. They came to a village one day, and at dawn, when our men were retiring they opened on them with machine guns hidden in houses and sheds.

"We lost heavily, but we are more cautious now, and make sure they are not wolves in sheep's clothing."

"And traction engines—how do they behave in action?"

"Well, there's been some casualties among them. I'm looking for some missing now. In one of the fights a dozen were in danger, and half a score of the boys went to the rescue. I had just started the engine when the front of the machine was blown away by a blooming shell. But we got six of them away."

He was really eloquent when he talked of the bravery of our soldiers.

"An officer was telling me the other day how they stood up in the trenches and met the hordes of Germans. He said it was the most glorious sight he had ever seen or imagined. They're keen as mustard—the boys. There's no shirkers when a man's got lost from his regiment he joins another—even if he's a French one he won't be kept out of the fighting."

And that is true—I can vouch for the fact.

A French soldier joined in the talk. He spoke English. They have an uncanny habit of listening and talking to you in French for quite a long time and then suddenly breaking out into good English.

"We don't meet many who can talk," said the soldier of the traction engine. "Some think they can, and get as far as saying, 'Good night, when its morning, and then I think it's time to go to bed. But they're decent folk—most of them, though I have to show them a lump of coal when I want coal for the engine."

I had an engagement for dinner, but I asked my friend and his comrades to let me be their host, and the French soldier escorted us to a restaurant on the quay.

We are said to be the most self-conscious people in the world, yet our soldiers are without a trace of the embarrassment which the French call mauvais gene. They took their places at table just as though they dined in a French restaurant every day of their lives, and one of them was in his shirt sleeves, while the other had a face the colour of the coal he is always seeking. I wonder if that was the reason the French soldier disappeared when we came to the restaurant."

BUY BLANKETS NOW!

All the world is demanding blankets, and European governments are coming to America to place orders for immense quantities.

That means BUSINESS.

It also means shorter stocks and the possibility of higher prices. It emphasizes the fact that now is the time to obey the buying impulse and lay in supplies for the cold days ahead.

The advertising columns of this paper are a daily index to the stores where the blankets can be purchased with certainty as to quality and assurance of fair prices.

CURRENT OPINION

School Child Must Look for Great Sources of Training in Home.

The child belongs in a home. He goes to a school, but he returns to the home, and it is in the home, where the ROOT OF HIS BEING IS, that we must look for the GREAT SPRINGS OF HIS ACTION AND THE GREAT SOURCES OF HIS TRAINING. We have put TOO HEAVY A BURDEN UPON THE SCHOOL, and we have not faced our responsibilities for the home.

IF A CHILD GOES TO SCHOOL FROM A HOME WHERE AN OVER-BURDENED MOTHER, PERHAPS A WIDOW, OR, DESERTED, STRUGGLES TO DO THE WORK OF BREADWINNER AND HOMEMAKER BOTH AND CAN GIVE HER CHILDREN NEITHER THE PHYSICAL NOR THE MORAL PROTECTION WHICH IS THEIR RIGHT, HE IS LIKELY TO TAKE TO SCHOOL NOT THE ALERT EAGERNESS WHICH SNATCHES NEW IDEAS WITH REAL JOY, BUT RATHER THE DULLED, UNSTEADY MIND WHICH CANNOT GRASP FACTS NOR REASON UPON THEM.

So plain is the sequence between delinquency and a home where the parents are not able to give adequate care to their children that three juvenile court judges in three different states have urged mothers' pensions because their experience showed that MOTHERS ARE NEEDED AT HOME TO FEED AND WARM AND TEND THEIR CHILDREN.—By Miss Julia C. Lathrop, Chief of Federal Children's Bureau.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, October 16.—Governor Walsh in his proclamation suspending the open season upon the game in and near forest lands said: "In view of the extreme drought now existing, and the fact that forest fires reported at the forest fire outlook stations suddenly increased at least five hundred per cent. On October 12th the first day of the open season on upland game, in spite of the extraordinary precautions taken by the Governor and by the executives of the Forestry, Fish and Game departments, it must be obvious to every public spirited citizen that the damage arising from even the small percentage of fires started by hunters, may be very considerable, not alone in actual loss, but indirectly in the far reaching and disastrous results through the destruction of useful birds, and by deterrent effect upon labor and capital, which is now being put into the development of forest, woodland and orchard properties by individuals and by the state. I therefore consider that the public may be best served by suspending the present open season on upland game, until a general and drenching rain has quenched the present numerous fires and made conditions again favorable within the Commonwealth."

Boston, October 16.—Adjutant General Charles A. Cole today received an official order from the war department at Washington notifying him of the appointment of Lieut. Colonel Beaumont B. Buck, Ninth Infantry, U. S. A., as inspector of the Massachusetts militia. Lieut. Col. Buck will report to Governor Walsh, Commander-in-Chief. The order is signed by Brig. General A. L. Mills for the chief of staff.

Boston, October 16.—Owing to the large number of requests for Samuel W. McCall, the Republican candidate for Governor, the speaker's bureau of the Republican state committee has been obliged in a good many instances to double up Mr. McCall's speaking dates so as to provide for his appearance in two cities on the same evening. Recent assignments for Mr. McCall include the following: Thursday evening, October 22, Haverhill and Lawrence; Friday evening, October 23, Taunton; Wednesday evening, October 26, Brockton and Quincy; Thursday evening, October 29, Lynn and Malden.

Boston, October 16.—The registration for the state election (this year is 111,323 in Boston, an increase of 457 over the registration for the primary and 2076 more than a year ago. Names added to the list at the closing day of registration numbered 993.

"SATISFACTORY TO ALLIES"

London, Oct. 15.—Reuter's Telegram Company has received from Amsterdam the following official statement issued in Vienna at noon Wednesday.

"The general staff says the Russians have occupied fortified positions on the line of Stry, Sambor and Midzva, in Galicia. The Austrians are now attacking the positions."

"In the Carpathians the Austrians occupied Toronya after four days of fighting and pursued the enemy in the direction of Wyskow. Smaller successful skirmishes have taken place in the Visso Valley."

Telegraphing Wednesday morning from Calais, the Daily Chronicle's correspondent says:

"The position on the allies' left wing which is now the most important section of the long battle line, grows daily more satisfactory. The fighting around Lille has been extremely satisfactory to the allies. The Germans have been turned out of the semi-circular positions which they held around Lille and the corner of French territory which puts into Belgium there."

Germans Pushed Back

"The Germans have been pushed back as far as Courtrai in Belgium 26 miles southwest of Ghent, where they are intrenching. It appears that they will make a stubborn endeavor to hold the line of Blankenberge, Bruges and Courtrai.

"It was the German intention to make a dash on Calais coincidentally with the taking of Antwerp. In accordance with this plan, they advanced in force on Hazebrouck, Mont Cassel and Saint Omer."

"The allies guns near Mont Cassel mowed down the incoming Germans, who fell back, leaving several hundred wounded. The allies followed up their advantage, throwing the enemy back over the Belgian border."

"During the fighting near Saint Omer a bomb from a German aeroplane killed three persons and injured six others. A French aeroplane pursued the German bomb thrower and killed the pilot and is companion with rifle shots."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Weyell's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, and abundant.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The enthusiastic reception accorded the opening of the grand opera season at the Boston Theatre last Monday evening by both press and public dispelled every element of scepticism that may have been entertained by those who questioned that high class grand opera could be produced at a popular scale. Never in the history of the historic Boston Theatre did a more brilliant gathering of opera lovers display such profound enthusiasm.

From the rise to the drop of the curtain the performance was frequently interrupted by enthusiastic applause. Long before the end of the performance it was evident that the opera season which is scheduled for a period of twelve weeks will prove highly successful both artistically and financially.

Manager Leachy chose Verdi's "Aida" as the opening bill to introduce the strength of his admirable company. That his selection was wise and praiseworthy was evident by the remarkable performance given. To quote Mr. Olin Downes, the celebrated musical critic of the Boston Post, "Aida" was conducted with authority and spirit and adequately represented in the solo parts. The most dramatic moment of the first scene of the first act, the moment which relieved the frigidity and suspense of an opening in an American opera house was the appearance of the Messenger. We do not remember to have heard his lines delivered with more authority and dramatic emotion.

The chorus and orchestra chosen from these departments of the Boston Opera Company, lived up to their reputation. It may also be said that members of the ballet of the same institution danced with rather unprecedented grace and liveliness. There was real operatic enthusiasm, such as has been seldom observed of late here.

It seemed as if the public had simply determined to rally and support the Olympian audacity of W. H. Leachy, the youngest and most courageous manager in the operatic world. The ensembles were effective and stirring thanks to the spirited and authoritative conducting of Mr. Boyl. Madame Kristoffy and Mr. Corradetti gave the best exhibition of dramatic singing.

The success scored by the principal artists was distinctively praiseworthy. Madame Johanna Kristoffy, the leading soprano of the Hof Opera in Vienna, proved herself to be a prima donna of excellent training. Her work is characterized with great charm and expression. Blanche Hamilton Fox, the mezzo soprano and a Boston girl, likewise scored a tremendous hit. Giuseppe Triclaro proved that he is one of the few dramatic tenors who can compare with Caruso, Zucchi and Tamagno.

An excellent repertoire has been arranged for this week. There will be a special matinee on Monday, Columbus Day, Oct. 12, when that supreme favorite "Trovatore" will be sung with Kathryn Lynbrook as Leonora, Blanche Hamilton Fox as Azucena, Luigi Mainiero as Manrico and Pietro Gallazzi as Count di Luna. On Monday evening "Otello" will be offered with Mmes. Kristoffy and Renis and the MM. Corradetti, Triclaro and di Biasi. The same opera will be repeated on Wednesday matinee. On Tuesday and Friday evenings "Rigoletto" will be the offering with Miriam Ardi as Gilda. The other principal artists will include Alice Gentile as Maddalena, Milla Picon as Rigoletto, Joseph Floriani as Sparafucile and Umberto Sacchetti as the Duke di Mantova. On Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee the first double bill will be presented in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" with Blanche Hamilton Fox, Carl Sapin, Pietro Gallazzi and Umberto Sacchetti as the principal artists in the first mentioned and Dora de Philippe, David Silva, Guglielmo Giuliani, Milla Picon and Giuseppe Opezzo as the leading artists. For Thursday and Saturday evenings, "The Barber of Seville" will be sung. No matter what the opera or who the star, the popular scale of prices will always remain the same.

KITTERY

The date of the chaffing dish social which was to have been held in the vestry of the Second Methodist church Monday evening, October 19, has been changed to Monday evening October 26.

The members of Constitution Lodge, K. of P., are working hard getting the first degree team ready for the District Convention, which date has been set for Nov. 4. They are drilling every meeting night as it is their desire to put on the work which will be a credit to Old Constitution Lodge. At the last meeting the members enjoyed a set-down to steamed clams, furnished by the entertainment committee, who has promised the members another set-down after the work next meeting. Not every member of the lodge came and enjoy these set-downs and assist in the work. Postals will be sent to all members notifying them of the Convention, after arrangements can be made for transportation.

STATE HORTICULTURAL MEETING.

The twentieth annual meeting of the New Hampshire Horticultural Society to be held at Andover, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week promises to be far and away the most successful meeting in the history of this organization. The increase in membership during the year, and the unusual interest of the members in the coming meeting would seem to indicate the awakening which is taking place among the fruit-growers of the state. This interest is not by any means confined to members of the organization, but is widespread among the farmers and fruit-growers.

The State Grange cup will cause some pretty keen competition among the subordinate granges, and the five other silver trophies will bring out a large exhibit of boxes and barrels. The special prizes of apron pails and implements will be eagerly sought after by the exhibitors.

The three days program which has been published before in these columns is one of the most interesting that could be prepared, dealing as it does with the problems of the orchardist and market gardener. Each speaker is a recognized authority on his chosen subject.

The demonstration of box and barrel packing of apples is always of interest and will draw the largest audience.

The exhibition and meetings are all free to everyone and the public are cordially invited to attend.

Farmers and fruit-growers should plan to spend the entire three days at Andover. It will be time well spent. Automobile parties planning to come just for the day will find good hotel accommodations and a pleasant and profitable trip.

Information regarding the exhibition, premium lists, entry blanks and programs may be obtained from Stanley K. Lovell, Goffstown, N. H.

ALLIES PUSHING BACK RIGHT WING OF GERMANS

Flanking Movement Working and Successfully Inflicting Heavy Losses--Ostend of No Use for Aerial Depot

Paris, Oct. 15.—The newspaper, Le Matin, of this particular fighting. The France du Nord declares today that the Germans were defeated at Arras they lost from 12,000 to 15,000 men, who were surrounded by the French in some marches.

London, Oct. 15.—The Germans in driving movement toward the channel has failed of its purpose. Unofficial word received here indicates that the Belgian and British forces, formerly concentrated near Ostend, have successfully effected a junction with a strongly reinforced column of French troops and have inflicted a severe check on the Germans. Their line of westward advance across the Franco-Belgian frontier, it was reported, had been bent back under an assault in which the Germans lost heavily.

The British forces are bearing the at Ostend. A fleet off the harbor could easily shell a Zeppelin hangar in the city and hangars are absolutely necessary for Zeppelin operations.

PARIS MORE OPTIMISTIC

Paris, Oct. 15.—With a Franco-Belgian British column pushing forward forcing an acute angle of depression in the line of the German advance, and with the French maintaining a successful offensive along the entire front, now must be considered the 500-mile front. Paris was optimistic again today.

Escaping from the German encircling movement, the allies have succeeded in delivering a smashing blow. The fighting along this line is terrific. Paris expects to hear of the German occupation of Belgium channel ports, but success which seems to be attending the allies' offensive slightly inland will make this occupation, in the belief here, an empty victory. Officials here maintain that the check so far administered has proved the Germans' inability to press forward along the coast line to French territory.

From semi-official reports here, the battle line across the Franco-Belgian frontier extends nearly due north and south. Gen. von Bessler's right wing rests on the North sea, near Blackenbergh, a small city 10 miles north of Ostend. His left reaches to the river Lys, in the neighborhood of Courtrai—16 miles east of Ypres, now held by the allies.

It is apparent here that the battle in this section is an endeavor to turn the flank of Von Bessler's force and insert a wedge between the columns of this general and that of Gen. von Bock.

Fighting Near Muelhausen

The right wing of the allies is now beginning to show signs of activity. According to reports reaching Paris this morning there was yesterday almost continuous firing of heavy artillery along the frontier. A force of Germans delivered a spirited attack on French troops, in which numbers were wounded. As night closed this force of the enemy was driven back in the direction of Muelhausen.

Gen. Col. Hausser, the French military critic, in his article today, declares that the recent official communications are lacking in clearness and that it is impossible to find in them any indication, even an absolutely business one, of the present military situation.

Asks More Publicity.

Col. Hausser says he calls attention to this fact without any thought of recrimination. He is well aware that it is difficult to reconcile the legitimate curiosity of the public with the safeguarding of national interests, but when the latter are not at stake more publicity could be shown.

The French people have given evidence of dignity, grimness, wisdom and patriotism and they should be taken more into the confidence of the government. In concluding his article, the critic points out several instances in which, in his opinion, the official communications have been lacking.

GERMANS NEARING OSTEND

The Hague, Oct. 15.—German service between Rotterdam and Antwerp has been ordered resumed Thursday. The concentrated movement of German troops in Belgium up to Ostend is progressing. The vanguards are believed to be at Bruges, Thourout and Diksmuide.

At Scheldt, 130 miles north of Ghent, a proclamation issued by the Germans demands the registration of all males between the ages of 15 and 40 years. The proclamation says that soldiers in uniform are to be treated as prisoners of war and that soldiers dressed in citizens' clothes will be treated as spies.

THINK HARD

It Pays to Think About Food

The unthinking life some people lead often causes trouble and sickness. Illustrated in the experience of this man.

"About four years ago I suffered dreadfully from indigestion, always having eaten whatever I liked, not thinking of the digestible qualities. This indigestion caused palpitation of the heart, so badly I could scarcely walk up a flight of stairs without stopping to regain breath and strength."

"I became alarmed and tried dieting, wore my clothes very loose and used other remedies but found no relief."

"Hearing of the virtues of Grape-Nuts and Postum, I commenced using them in place of my usual breakfast of coffee, cakes or hot biscuit, and in two weeks time I was relieved of my stomach and other ills attending indigestion. In a month's time my heart was performing its functions naturally and I could climb stairs and hills and walk long distances."

"I gained ten pounds in this short time, and my skin became clear and healthy. I continue to use Grape-Nuts and Postum for I feel that I owe my good health entirely to their use."

"I like the delicious flavor of Grape-Nuts and by making Postum according to directions, it tastes similar to mild, high grade coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"The most perfect food in the world. Told of Grape-Nuts and cream, ten years ago. 'There's a Reason.' I took in years, for the little book, 'The Road to Well-being.'"

"Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest."

CHILDREN HATE PILLS, CALOMEL AND CASTOR OIL

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dread" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicate "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today save a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

IS EVERY BERMAN A SOLDIER?

London, October 15.—A British military expert discussing the relative merits of the existing armies now in the field, has this unalloyed opinion of the German army:

"In the discussions which are taking place on all sides in these stirring times of war, the remark is frequently heard that every German is a soldier. Now, this is not strictly true. There is, of course, a certain amount of truth in the statement, but the ideas to which it gives rise are frequently misleading and perhaps rather disheartening to us. We think of our own picked and highly trained soldiers, and we imagine perhaps that all the German men are like this and that when their members are taken into account they may well claim that they have an invincible army."

"I am far from being one of those idealists who believes that a Helton is as good as half a dozen Germans, or Russians or Turks and day, but I think that some of our seamen go a little too far in the opposite direction and sometimes give our opponents all the credit which they claim for themselves and the Germans claim a good deal."

"There are three ways of raising and maintaining an army. The first is by voluntary enlistment, the second by conscription and the third by universal compulsory service. Many people seem to think that conscription and universal compulsory service are alike. This is not so, however. Where universal service is the rule, everyone who is physically fit to bear arms, with a few special exceptions such as clergymen or the only sons of widows must serve in the army for a certain term. This is the rule in Germany, Austria, France, Russia, Serbia, Turkey, Switzerland, Italy, Japan, Australia and many other countries."

"In those countries where conscription prevails a certain number of men of a definite age are taken annually for the army by lot. Every man between the specified age limit is liable to serve, but only those are taken upon whom the lots fall, the number of lots being regulated by the requirements of the army, and as all the men of suitable age are not taken it is open to those who are selected to find or pay for substitutes. This system of conscription is followed by Belgium, Holland and Spain."

The method of voluntary enlistment in which it is open to every man to enter the army or not, according to his own free choice is adopted by the United Kingdom, the United States, the Indian Empire and China. The man who enters our army makes, as it were a contract of service for a certain number of years and may be said to choose war as his trade or profession during that time."

"Conscription is now a little out of date and those people who think that voluntary enlistment is not sufficient for the nation's defense always advocate a change to universal service, which has the advantage of being equally fair to all. Every man who is fit must serve and the wealthy man cannot get off by buying a substitute."

"Let us now take an example of universal compulsory service and see what it is like. Every German when he reaches the age of twenty must enter the army. He is fit for service, he serves for a period of one, two or three years."

"The reason for these various terms requires explanation. The full term of service in infantry regiments is two years, in cavalry regiments, three years. But if the young German produces a certificate testifying that he has attained a certain standard of scientific knowledge, or in other words passed a stiff examination, he is allowed to opt a term of one year off his active service. This brings the cavalry term down to two years and the infantry term down to one year. The holders of these certificates however, must pay for their own food, lodging, clothes and weapons. They are described as one year volunteers and they have varied privileges during their term of service which are not allowed to the less successful recruits. The latter are clothed, armed and supported at the expense of the state, and receive pay at the rate of 22 pence or more a day."

The volunteers must make their application to serve in this class during their eighteenth year, but the actual service may be put off in some cases to the 24th year."

When the young German soldier has completed his term with the standing army, he passes into the reserve. The two year men serve five years in the reserve, and the three year men four years, large numbers of these reservists are called up each year for a training with the active troops which lasts about a month. The same men are not called up for two years in succession so they have not usually more than two trainings while they are in the Reserve."

"From the Reserve the soldier passes into the Landwehr, which is a sort of second Reserve. The infantry of the Landwehr are called up for a week's or a fortnight's training at various periods for the next five or six years after which the liability to training ceases. At the age of forty they pass into the Landsturm in which they complete their term of military service, which ceases at the age of forty-five. While in the Landsturm they have to answer an occasional roll call, but perform no service except in time of war or extreme urgency."

"Such is the main basis of the German system of compulsory service, which is generally held to be the most stringent and efficient in Europe. There are many complications chiefly in regard to different classes of arms which it would be confusing rather than instructive to note in detail."

"The officers for these troops are obtained partly by election from the ranks of the 'einjährige Freiwillige', who belong mainly to the wealthy and intellectual classes and partly from the cadet schools in which boys are specially educated for a military service and they enter the army as ensigns when they are eighteen years of age and advance through the various ranks of officership in much the same way and at about the same ages as our officers do."

The manifest advantages of a voluntary man, he has been tried in various supplies the state with a large number of men who have served one or two years in the army, have learned to shoot and occupy a definite place in the way or organization. These are great advantages, especially when a hastily blown is to be struck. It would be foolish to minimize them."

"Yet if we can view the matter with out panic, it will be seen that something can be said for our own system. In the first place between the British and the German standing armies there should be just the difference that here is between the professional and the amateur."

"A man who has served in the British army, for let us say, six or seven years, should know his business better than a young man of 21 or 22 who has at the most seen only three years of service. Moreover the British soldier will in all probability have seen some actual warfare and have his skin grazed in something more serious than formal duelling. Probably too, he has been tried in various family and territorial ties at various times and has done transport and other work under conditions more like those of real warfare than provided by maneuvers. Whether he is or is not better than his foes man for man, he ought to be better. And seeing that we take our ideas of what a soldier is from our own tried and professional troops, this in itself discounts a good deal of the statement that every German is a soldier."

"Then again when we draw upon our army reserves we draw upon a body of men who have not merely done two years service in the army but have served under our army conditions and have had the training and experience to which I have referred. If, moreover, the German can make a satisfactory soldier in one year, as he does in the case of the 'einjährige Freiwillige,' we ought to be able to do as well or even better if our first line of defense can resist and hold back the rush, which is the prime task of the nation with a universal organization."

"Behind that rush there is nothing, broadly speaking, but middle-aged and old men and boys. Our enemy, has indeed the permanent advantage of a larger population but that will be met by drawing upon our Imperial resources. Behind our fighting force, wholly disproportionate though it may be in the first instance, is a reserve population which contains many who are of the best fighting age and who will, we may be sure volunteer for the service."

And let us not overlook the fighting virtue of the volunteer spirit. The remark that 'one volunteer is worth two pressed men' comes down to us from those days of strenuous fighting a hundred years ago when Britain was seriously threatened as she is today; when as I may remind you Napoleon had his compelled forces waiting to cross the channel, if only he could master the passage for six hours in that crisis Britain mustered 300,000 volunteers. It is said that they would have offered but a small impediment to the veterans of the Grand Army. That may or may not be true but we must remember that the veterans of Napoleon's army were matchless because they had learned the art of war by long service and not be-

RID STOMACH OF GASES, SOURNESS, AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends all stomach distress in five minutes.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and causes flatulency; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

cause they had been impressed into the service.

One cannot compare the ordinary two-year men of the Continental armies with the veterans of actual war. Many of the former heartily detest military service. Years ago I made the acquaintance of a young foreigner who was approaching the age of service. One of his greatest wishes was that he might not grow taller, because if he did so he would be drafted into the cavalry instead of the infantry and have to serve a year longer. I have met others who disliked the service just as much.

"The desire to gain the certificates which shorten their terms of service in the army is in part the cause of much mental overwork and strain among German boys. It has been asserted that owing to this strain 70 per cent of the boys become short sighted and that 40 per cent are ultimately rejected as unfit for military service. Moreover child-enlistment is unusually common in Germany and the causes are often overwork and the failure to pass the critical examinations."
